Mr. Garrett P. Serviss' Fine Lecture at the Academy

Last Night. "How Worlds Are Made," a lecture il-lustrated by actual photographs, mechan-toal slides and comparative pictures and delivered se the Academy of Music, by Mr. Garrett R. Sowiss, the eminent as-tronomer and writer, last night held an immense audience for an hour and three-quarters. Mr. Serviss has devoted a large part of his life to the popularizing of part of his life to the popularizing of astronomy, illustrating to the people at large the mystic facts of the growth, prosperity and death of worlds.

Last night be exploited the new accepted theory of nebular formation, incidentally touching upon the building of a new acceptance. solar system around the recently discovered star Nova Persel, which, last Febtuary, suddenly appeared in the heavens and is now expanding into a nebulous mass which will in turn contract into worlds and suns and stars.

In substance he declared that science in no way contradicts the formation of the world according to biblical history, save that biblical history does not tell all. The solar system, of which the world the proof he sold was once a nebulous is a part, he sald, was once a nebulous mass, identical in many ways with dozens of others known to astronomy. Gradually the whirling through space had contracted this nebulous mass, throwing off rings, which in turn contracted into worlds, the earth being only a tiny speck in this vast handlwork of God. From this nebulous mass he showed.

by means of photographs of the various planets, how life had come, then how it is in many cases disappearing, as in Mars through lack of heat, and then referred to the moon as the only example we know of an absolutely dead world. He went further. He said that all scientific investigation had shown that with the one death of a world all is not ended, but that through force of collision, possibly with another sphere invisible to us, the generated heat would so expand as to again throw a body into a nebulous condition, where the process of formation would again be undergone.

This idea of collision between two dead planets, he declared, would make possible the sudden appearance of the new star, which amazed the astronomical only a few months ago. Heat generated light and now the process will be gone all over again. From the opening to the finish there was not a sound in the house save the speaker's voice, only twice ap-plause and that at the singular beauty of some of the Lick Observatory photo-over which civil government could be established. The result was the same although there was no stipulation that the native inhabitants should be incorporated into the body politic and none se curing to them the right to choose their nationality. Their allegiance became due to the United States and they became entitled to its protection.

"But it is said that the case of the Philippines is to be distinguished from that of Porto Rico, because, on February 14, 1899, after the ratification of the treaty, the Senate resolved that by the ratification of the treaty of peace with Spain it is not intended to incorporate the inhabi-tants of the Philippine Islands into citizenship of the United States, etc., nor to permanently annex those islands." LOWER COURT REVERSED.

This resolution the court regards a "absolutely without legal significance on the question before us. The meaning of the treaty cannot be controlled by subsequent explanations of some of those who may have voted to ratify it."

"It is further contended that a distinc-tion exists in that while complete possession of Porto Rico was taken by the United States, this was not so as to the Philippines, because of the armed resistance of the native inhabitants to a greater or less extent.
"We must decline to assume that the

itself in the position of waging a war of conquest.

"The sovereignty of Spain over the Philippines and possession under claim of title had existed for a long series of years prior to the war with the United States. Spain granted the islands to the United States, and the grantee in accepting them took nothing less than the whole grant. The Chief Justice conclused his opinion by reversing the decision of the court be-

Justice Brown read an opinion concurting in the result, but differing from the conclusions drawn on minor points. Justices Gray, Shiras, White and Mc-Kenna dissented, but filed no written PORTO RICAN CASE.

The other case decided was the second of the Dooley cases, involving the constitutionality of the law of april 12, providing for the collection of duty on arviding for the collection of duty on articles shipped from the United States into Porto Rico. The decision was rendered by Justice Brown. This case grows out of the imposition of tariff duties on goods shipped from New York to Porto Rico. shipped from New York to Porto Rico under the act of April, 1900, providing revenues and a civil government for Porto Rico. Duty was collected at Porto Rico on goods shipped to that port by Dooley, Smith & Co. to their agent, who was in Suan Juan. Docley, Smith & Co. brought suit to recover the money paid by them, which they declared had been wrongfully collected at San Juan. The contention on the part of Dooley's counse, was that Congress and not the power, under the Constitution, to impose taxes or duties such as were levied under the act of April 12, upon articles taken i..to Porto Rico ports from other parts of the United tion of the nation.

Justice Brown, in his opinion, said the case raised the constitutionality of the Foraker act, so far as it fixes the duties to be paid upon merchandise imported

NOT EXPORTED. "If, then, Porto Rico be no longer a foreign country under the Dingley act, as was held by a majority of this in DeLima vs. Bidwell, we find it impossible to szy that goods carried from the York to Porto Rico can be considered as 'exported' from New York within the meaning of that clause of the Constitute avaries nor tution. If they are neither exports nor imports, they are still liable to be taxed by Congress under the ample and comprehensive authority conferred by the Constitution to 'lay and collect taxes, ANOTHER VIEW. "In another view, however, the case presented by the record is whether a duty laid by Congress upon goods arrivng at Porto Rico from New York is a duty upon an export from New York or upon an import to Porto Rico. The fact hat the duty is exacted upon the arrival of the goods at San Juan certainly creates presumption in favor of the latter theory. At the same time it is possible that t may also be a duty upon an export. he mere fact that the duty is not goods imported into Porto Rico, since it was exacted by the collector of the port of San Juan after the arrival of the goods within the limits of that port. From this noment the duties became payable as apon imported merchandise. Now while an import into one port almost necessarily involves a prior export from an-other, still in determining the character of the tax imposed it is important to consider whether the duty be laid for the purpose of adding to the revenues of the country from which the export takes place or for the benefit of the territory expedient, with a proviso that it may be abolished by the Legislative Assembly of Porto Rico at its will, Congress thereby shows that it is undertaking to legislate for the island temporarily and only until the local government is put into opera-tion. The mere fact that the duty passes through the hands of the revenue officers of the United States is immaterial, in view of the requirement that it shall not be converted into the general fund of the treasury, but be held as a separate fund for the government and benefit of Porto

"The action is really correlative to that of Downes vs. Bidwell, in which we held that Congress could lawfully impose a duty upon imports from Porto Rico, not duty upon imports from Porto Rico, not-withstanding the provision of the Con-stitution that 'all duties, imposts and ex-cises shall be uniform throughout the United States.'

United States."
"It is not intended by this opinion to intimate that Congress may lay an export tax upon merchandise carried from one State to another. While this does not seem to be forbidden by the express words of the Constitution it would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to lay such tax without a violation of the first paragraph of Article I., section S, that 'all outies, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States. There is a wide difference between the be uniform throughout the United States.
There is a wide difference between the full and paramount power of Congress legislating for a territory in the condition of Porto Rico and its power with respect to the States which is merely incidental to its right to regulate interstate commerce. The question, however, is not involved in this case, and we do not feeling the condition of the Sons of Conferences to the work of the Sons of Conferences to the uniform throughout the United States.

ELECTED REV. E. L. GOODWIN.

Rector of St. Mark's Chosen Secretary of State Missions.

Rev. E. L. Goodwin, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, was yesterday evening elected secretary of the Diocesan Missionary Society of Virginia by the Executive Committee in a session held at

Mr. Goodwin succeeds in this office the late Rev. Preston Nash. For the past ten months Mr. W. C. Bently has been acting as secretary, but now turns the work of the society over to his successor.

Mr. Goodwin has lived in Richmond something over two years, and, as a minister and a Christian gentleman, is held in the highest esteem by all with whom he has been associated. The Diocesan Missionary Society is the mainstay of the rural Episcopal churches of the State, and through its Executive Committee dispenses annually over $3,000

Many of his friends surrounded Mr. Glass in the Senate Chamber, where he was being attended by his physician. He expressed great disapppointment at the conference having been called off on his account, and insisted that he could have made his argument. Hon. J. H. Lindsay persuaded him to be taken to his room, where at 10 o clock he was resting quietly, Mr. Lindsay also sent a telegram to Mrs. Glass, and she is expected on the early train. Mr. Glass read the telegram and approved it. It is expected that Mrs. Glass will persuade the Senator to go home with her and get a season of absolute rest.

It is altogether likely that the friends of Judge G. Taylor Garnett, the popular member of the convention from Gloucester and Mathews, will succeed in getting him to be a candidate for judge in the new Thirteenth Circuit, should the pro-posed scheme of the Judiciary Committee be carried out. The new circuit will emrace the counties of Gloucester, Mathews Middlesex, King and Queen and King Wil-liam. Judge Garnett has announced that he will under no circumstances oppose Judge Wright for re-election in the old circuit, though his friends have been anxious that he would enter the race.

Mr. Henderson having been declared Mr. Henderson having been declared elected, the clerk appointed Mesers. Richardson, Stark and Cummings a committee to escort the Speaker to the chair.

OUTBURST OF APPLAUSE. OUTBURST OF APPLAUSE.

General Henderson appeared two minutes later on the arm of Mr. Richardson. The Speaker was greeted with a great outburst of applause from both sides of the House. He came down the alsle and ascended the rostrum with the aid of his cane and stood there for a moment facing a storm of applause. Mr. Richardson then introduced him in half a dozen son then introduced him in half a dozen words. The Speaker addressed the House briefly, saying:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representabriefly, saying:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives: This high honor, which you have conferred upon me, I profoundly appreciate. All the more do I appreciate it, coming as it does with this generous expression from both sides of the chamber. There is yet left another method for a presiding officer to express his appreciations of such an honor; that is by a kindly, firm and faithful administration of the laws and the rules that govern this body. It will be my aim to discharge impartially the duties of this office. As I said at the opening of the last Congress, no presiding efficer can successfully administer the duties of his office unless he has the support of the body over which he presides. I asked for it then; you gave it to me throughout the entire Congress. Fermit me once more to invoite that patience, kind consideration and splendfd support which was accorded to me in the last Congress.
